A Message from the Commissioners

Commissioner R. D. Maynard, Chairman James F. Kile, and Commissioner Thomas Limbaugh.

The Commissioners of the Idaho Industrial Commission are pleased to present this report of the agency's activities for Fiscal Year 2001.

This year we would like to note two important personnel changes. First, we are pleased to welcome Tom Limbaugh as Governor Kempthorne's appointee as the employer representative on the three-member commission. Mr. Limbaugh brings tremendous experience as an employer, farmer, and government administrator to the position.

We also wish to note that Gary Stivers, who served as the Commission's Director for twelve years, with over three decades of state service, was hired as Executive Director of the State Board of Education. His management skills will be greatly missed. We will announce plans to hire a new director in 2002.

The Industrial Commission can be proud of many major accomplishments in FY 2001, all of which are a tribute to the skills and dedication of the Industrial Commission staff. Among the major accomplishments are:

- The average time required to issue a workers' compensation decision was reduced by 38% during FY 2001, to 44 days. At the close of the fiscal year, only two cases had been under advisement for more than 90 days.
- The Commission established an advisory committee on workers' compensation in the fall of 2000. The members of the committee are some of the foremost workers' compensation professionals in Idaho, and we are pleased to be working with them to improve the operation of Idaho's workers' compensation system.
- An electronic data interchange (EDI) agreement was developed with the Idaho State Insurance Fund, allowing for the electronic transfer of first reports of injury to the Commission. This represents over 40% of the volume of claims filed with the Commission, substantially decreasing the amount of data entry required by Commission employees. Almost 56% of the claims filed with the Commission are now received electronically from our trading partners.

• We provided greater access to the Commission's services, with greater efficiency, by co-locating offices in Burley and Kellogg with the Idaho Department of Labor.

While we are proud of these accomplishments, the numbers that are most meaningful to us are those that reflect the services provided to the people of Idaho:

- Over 1,400 workers were returned to work through efforts of the Commission's Rehabilitation Division.
- 1,164 victims of crime were determined eligible for benefits from the Crime Victims Compensation Program. Over $1.6 million in benefits were provided to innocent victims of crime in Idaho.

• Employees at over 2,600 companies were ensured of workers' compensation coverage through intervention by the Commission.

These accomplishments demonstrate the commitment of our managers and staff to serve the taxpayers of Idaho effectively and efficiently in all the areas directed by its mission.

Employer Compliance

Workers' compensation coverage is compulsory for all employers unless specifically exempted by state law. The Commission's Employer Compliance staff monitors employer coverage and investigates employers identified as not having coverage.

An electronic reporting standard implemented by the Commission in 1997 has resulted in more timely and accurate reporting of policy information by the more than 300 insurance carriers licensed to write workers' compensation insurance policies for Idaho employers.

The policy information reported by insurance companies helps the Commission identify employers who are not providing the required insurance coverage for their employees. The Commission also uses information received from Idaho Business Registration Forms and from the Idaho Department of Labor new-hire registry to better advise employers of the workers' compensation insurance requirements of the law.

The Commission encourages voluntary compliance with the coverage requirements of the law. During the last fiscal year, over 18,000 letters were sent by the Compliance staff to advise employers of their obligation to carry workers' compensation insurance. Compliance investigators located around the state followed up with visits to work sites to explain coverage requirements and to ensure compliance with the law.

During FY 2001, the number of employers obtaining workers' compensation insurance as a result of contact by the Idaho Industrial Commission increased by 180 over the previous year.

Referrals to Compliance investigators during FY 2001 increased by approximately 5% from the preceding year. These referrals have been increasing annually, due in large part to new businesses opening in Idaho.

Employers who do not voluntarily comply with the law face stiff civil penalties. A minimum fine of $25.00 per day can be assessed against an employer who is found to be in violation of the coverage requirements of the workers' compensation law. Uninsured employers must also pay all compensation due to an injured worker plus a 10% penalty and other fees.

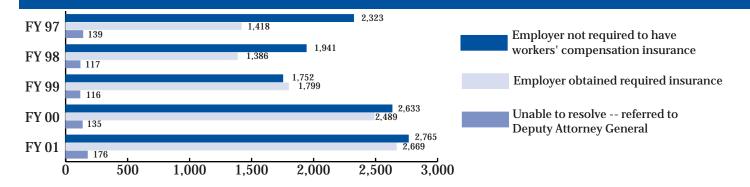

Strict enforcement of the workers' compensation requirement benefits both employers and workers. The Industrial Commission can file a lawsuit in District Court to enforce the coverage requirement of the law if necessary. One hundred forty-two such suits were filed last fiscal year, resulting in 100 judgments in the Commission's favor. Employers can be enjoined from operating their business until they obtain the required insurance for their employees.

The Employer Compliance staff receives hundreds of telephone inquiries each month from employers asking for information regarding the hiring of contractors, family members, and other coverage questions. The staff also regularly furnishes information to medical providers needing to identify an employer's insurance company in order to begin treatment for workers injured on the job.

The Employer Compliance staff is also committed to education and outreach programs for employers through participating in events for small employers and in projects such as an interactive web site to provide information on regulations for small employers.

Benefits Administration

Over 46,000 job-related injuries or illnesses were reported to the Idaho Industrial Commission in FY 2001. The Commission's Benefits Administration staff reviews and confirms the accuracy of the data, codes the information presented, and enters the data into a comprehensive electronic database. Presently, that database contains a record of nearly 900,000 claims of injury.

After entering each report of injury into the database, the Claims staff maintains the integrity of the data over the course of the year by continuously checking for duplicate claims, incorrect Social Security numbers, inconsistent dates of injury and the like, and making necessary investigations and corrections. As additional information is received regarding the injury, claims personnel add that data to the electronic file, ensuring a complete and accurate record is maintained. When a time-loss claim is closed and the closing document has been approved, the payment history is added and the claim is coded as "closed."

During the past fiscal year, the Commission worked with the Idaho State Insurance Fund to exchange claim information electronically, greatly reducing paperwork transfers for both agencies. This change will speed the claim filings for approximately 25,000 employers insured by the State Fund. Two of Idaho's largest workers' compensation insurers now provide claims information to the Commission electronically, reflecting about 56% of all claims.

The Records Management staff catalogs, files, and maintains the physical claim files at the Commission. Over the past year, the Records Management staff responded to nearly 13,000 requests for searches or copies of records.

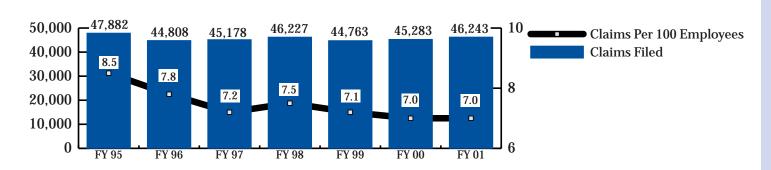

For most claimants, their current claim is their first experience with the workers' compensation system. Upon receipt of every notice of injury or illness, the Commission sends to the worker a card acknowledging receipt of the notification, informing the worker of the claim number assigned to the case, and providing phone numbers of both the claims adjuster and the Industrial Commission. The Commission's staff of five Compensation Consultants responds to over 15,000 inquiries each year from injured workers, as well as from other parties such as insurance companies and attorneys.

The Compensation Consultants also audit benefit payment information on over 9,000 closing documents submitted annually by sureties and adjusters. This past year, the Compensation Consultants reviewed and made recommendations to the Commissioners for final action on over 1,300 negotiated lump sum settlements involving hundreds of separate claims. Finally, the Compensation Consultants conduct on-site visits to insurers, adjusters, and self-insured employers. These visits are designed to both help train companies and ensure compliance with the Idaho workers' compensation law, judicial rulings, and the Industrial Commission's own administrative rules.

While the Commission does not directly provide workers' compensation or monetary benefits to injured workers, the Compensation Consultants work closely with injured workers, employers, insurance companies, adjusters, and health care providers to provide information, training, and assistance in administering workers' compensation benefits.

Adjudication

The workers' compensation system was developed as the "sole remedy" for employees injured on the job. It was designed to provide workers with speedy access to medical treatment and specific payment amounts for disabilities resulting from job-site accidents. This system also protects insured employers from civil liability.

In most cases the injured employee, the employer, and the insurer cooperatively settle disputes. However, when a dispute cannot be resolved by agreement of the parties, they may request a formal hearing.

Formal hearings are conducted by Commissioners or by attorney hearing officers called referees. At a hearing, testimony and other evidence are carefully reviewed. After evaluating and weighing the evidence, the Commission issues a written decision. Commission decisions are appealable directly to the Idaho Supreme Court.

In FY 2001 the Commission was able to make further reductions in the number of days cases were held under advisement. The average time required to issue a workers' compensation decision was 44 days during the past fiscal year, a 38% reduction from the preceding twelve month period. At the end of the fiscal year there were only two cases that had been under advisement for more than 90 days.

The Commission also provides a mediation process which is available to all parties at any stage of the claim to assist the parties in reaching a successful resolution in a dispute. Mediation provides for the settlement of claims more expeditiously than litigation.

In addition to regular workers' compensation cases, the Commission resolves medical fee disputes between health care providers and workers' compensation insurers. Since 1993 this work has been accomplished primarily through an administrative process.

A major part of the Commission's responsibilities involves the resolution of unemployment insurance cases. The Commission is currently exceeding federal standards in all areas measured by the U.S. Department of Labor with regard to the timely issuance of decisions. The average time to issue a decision on an unemployment insurance appeal during FY 2001 was 35 days.

Rehabilitation

A work-related injury or illness can be a devastating event for the worker and the worker's family. The potential for lost income and lost benefits can be great. It is the goal of the Rehabilitation staff to help injured workers return to the workplace and into a position as close as possible to the pre-injury wage and status. These services are provided at no additional cost to the employer, insurer, or employee.

When returning to pre-injury employment is not possible, the Rehabilitation staff works with the employee to find satisfying alternative employment. This job development stage includes an in-depth transferrable-skills analysis, assistance in identifying new employers, on-the-job training opportunities, and job placement.

During FY 2001 the Rehabilitation Division opened a new field office in Kellogg. This is a continuation of the Commission's efforts to provide direct services to smaller Idaho communities. A field office opened in Payette last year is now adding a second Rehabilitation Field Consultant in order to serve the community effectively. These new offices are co-located with the Idaho Department of Labor. The Commission's Burley office was moved to co-locate with the Department of Labor as well. These co-locations allow Commission Field Consultants to work more efficiently in helping to return injured workers to the job market. The division now operates in eleven Idaho cities and the Commission's Boise location.

The Rehabilitation Division completed the first phase of its automated case management system. Statewide training and orientation of Rehabilitation staff was implemented with the upgraded software.

This system is designed to enhance the division's existing resources. It will provide more efficient processing of new referrals and offer a more professional comprehensive management of existing cases. It will also allow the Commission to provide prompt, electronic updates on the status of rehabilitation cases with insurers and medical professionals to provide comprehensive service to injured workers seeking rehabilitation assistance.

During FY 2001 the Rehabilitation Division helped 1,414 workers return to the competitive labor market. Those workers returned to the work force at an average of 98% of their pre-injury wages.

Crime Victims Compensation Program

The Crime Victims Compensation Program has served the State of Idaho for over 15 years, providing financial benefits and case management services to victims of crime or their dependent survivors. Since its inception, the program has paid nearly $16-million in compensatory benefits.

No tax dollars are used by the program. 100% of funding comes from offenders, either through state and federal fines or from restitution assessed by the courts.

Approximately 77% of the cases handled by the program during FY 2001 involved criminal conduct against women and children, and approximately 33% of all cases involved sex-related offenses.

Eligible claimants may receive benefits relating to:

- The cost of medical and mental health treatment;
- · Wage loss or loss of support; and
- Funeral and burial services.

The program does not reimburse for property losses as a result of a crime.

The program achieved the following noteworthy results during FY 2001:

 The program continued its focus on actively seeking reimbursement through restitution and subrogation. This activity, coupled with the establishment of a Financial Recovery Officer, resulted in a 39.4% increase in the collection of restitution and an increase of nearly 12% in collections from subrogation during FY 2001.

 Decreased the time needed to make eligibility determinations. Claims for compensation are now being processed within 25 days after all reports are submitted.

During FY 2001, the Idaho Legislature gave the Crime Victims Compensation Program responsibility for reimbursement of forensic sexual assault examinations. These examinations can cost hundreds of dollars each, with a potential expenditure by the program of $250,000 in FY 2002. The Legislature hoped that by placing responsibility under the Crime Victims Program that it will reduce the burden on local law enforcement budgets, further assist victims of sexual assault, and provide for consistency in forensic sexual assault examinations throughout the state. The Crime Victims program provided statewide training to law enforcement and hospital personnel to educate staff on the change in the law.

The program will also continue outreach efforts through hospitals, prosecutors, advocacy groups, and law enforcement offices throughout the state to make the services of the program available to as many eligible people as possible.
